12TH NOVEMBER 2021

A TIME OF CRUCIAL TRANSITIONS

OUR CITY:

New Long-term Plan that must account for:

✦ NPS on Housing

Intensification - for some.

. . .is continuance for Inner City
Wellington.

A TIME OF CRUCIAL TRANSITIONS

Issues that currently exist ONLY being exacerbated by the increase in speed of the intensification.

Not enough public amenities now, public spaces, green spaces etc.

The deficit will grow as the intensification accelerates.

Infrastructure Deficit:

The infrastructure relating to 3 waters and public transport (for residents).

This will only worsen as the intensification accelerates.

✘ IT IS FACT that the City has not been able to keep up with these issues at the current rate of residential development.

✘ HOW can we have any confidence that this new long term plan can keep up with accelerated development let alone catchup the existing deficits in public amenity and infrastructure.

✘ HOW it has worked in the past has failed to deliver what is required - what is different this time?

Wastewater spilling into harbour for at least a decade

Wellington sewage spills 20 times higher than acceptable target

Raw sewage spills onto Lambton Quay, covering footpath

$12 billion isn't nearly enough: The scale of Wellington's infrastructure deficit

Poo trucks all night, then repairs all day, after sewage pipe bursts

Audit New Zealand warns Wellington City Council is risking more burst pipes

ICW IS ALSO NAVIGATING SOME KEY TRANSITIONS AT THIS TIME.

- 1. The transition between the leadership that established the mana of ICW, to a new leadership group that will need to maintain and continue the legacy of exceptional input into the civic decision making processes in support of the future needs of our inner-city neighbourhoods.

ICW IS ALSO NAVIGATING SOME KEY TRANSITIONS AT THIS TIME.

- 2. Developing new ways to broaden our representative advocacy on behalf of all sectors of the rapidly growing residential community.

ICW's work in the community must necessarily expand to provide connectivity and community development support for the diverse communities that are rapidly moving into our inner city.

ICW has a role to play in connecting, informing, and supporting initiatives that help grow belonging and connection within our growing neighbourhoods
